Energy deregulation: An opportunity to save.

New Jersey is one of 15 states to deregulate its energy market. That means you have the opportunity to choose where you get your power. Before deregulation, your local power company (PSE&G, JCP&L or ACE) generated your power and carried it to your home or business.

But today, New Jersey consumers have choices on who supplies the electricity. When you choose Verde Energy USA, your utility company still carries the power to your home or business and services your account whenever you need. But you can now save nearly 2¢ per kilowatt hour.

Doesn't sound like much? Consider that many New Jersey homes use 2,000 kilowatt hours or more each month and many small businesses use five to ten times that amount or more, and that savings adds up pretty quickly!
